

AGATHA CHRISTIE

DEATH ON THE NILE

ADAPTED BY FRANÇOIS RIVIÈRE
ILLUSTRATED BY SOLIDOR

LONDON, 1930. AN ELEGANT RESTAURANT IN THE WEST END ...

Me, a manager? Do you really think so?

Of course, Simon darling! Please say yes! My friend Linnet Ridgeway has a marvellous estate – and you do want to start earning again!

And then we could get married, Jackie. Is that it?

Oh, darling! Do say yes! It's a dream job! I phoned Linnet yesterday and it's all agreed!

But my dearest, I don't need a manager!

He has just lost his job, Linnet!

Oh, Linnet! Please do this for me! If I don't marry him, I'll die!

You can be so ridiculous, Jackie! Alright. Bring along your young man and let me have a look at him.

You'll finally have a job, Simon. We'll spend our honeymoon in Egypt, and hang the expense!

You adorable little fool!

All Egypt ...

I love you so much, my adorable Simon!

You love him a bit too much, ma petite ...

EGYPT ...

THE WHARF AT ASWAN ...

Look Tim! Isn't that the famous Hercule Poirot on the quay?

What on earth is that nosy parker doing here?

What? Give me the binoculars, mother! Quickly!

And look! There's Linnet Ridgeway. She's beautiful — and extremely rich!

Really? Do you know her?

Huh? No, not at all! She's a friend of Joana. All the newspapers wrote about her marriage. What's her husband's name?

Linnet Ridgeway and Simon Doyle. He has married the richest woman in England. Mr Poirot!

I have seen this young man before ... but where?

So much beauty and so much wealth! It's really very unfair!

I hate her!

All that glitters is not gold.
Mademoiselle. I sense that she is not altogether content ...

Well, I'm just a jealous old cat ... But I do detest her!

I tell you, something is eating her ...

ROSALIE!

Excuse me. My mother can never do without me for long. Oh! When will we ever leave this country?!

Come, Mademoiselle!
Very soon we will
be cruising the Nile.
Discovering wild Nubia!

I'll need your signature at some point, Unnet.

I understand, Pennington. My marriage has brought some changes in my situation ...

I do apologize for forcing these mundane things upon you during honey-moon, my dear!

All this paperwork! But I suppose business is business!

This persecution is disgusting, intolerable! My husband's former fiancée, Jacqueline de Bellefort, follows us everywhere. Venice, Brindisi, Menu House. It must stop!

It is certainly a strange way of taking revenge. Unfortunately I cannot see what can be done about it.

Simon preferred me. Surely that's fair? She's even threatened to kill us. Never in public, but ...

In that case, Madame, it is private. I cannot officially intervene.

So you will not act for me? Wonderful!

Madame, I can try to reason with Mademoiselle de Bellefort. That is all I can offer.

"Surely that's fair?" I am not so sure. But I will speak to her ...

Simon and I adored each other. And Linnet was my best friend. I trusted her. You can't understand ...

Oh! but I do! This honeymoon in Egypt should have been yours. I know everything. Last summer I overheard you in a restaurant in London.

Mademoiselle, I am speaking to you as a friend. Forget the past. You're only prolonging your suffering.

She dazzled and enchanted him. And he betrayed me. He'd better be careful!

Nice little thing isn't it? Who would think this little toy could kill? I'm quite a good shot ...

Mademoiselle, I beseech you! Do not let this evil grow in your heart!

Someone is watching us ...
Oh! He's vanished!

ASWAN, THE NEXT MORNING...

Good morning, Mr Poirot?
Mind if I stroll with you?

Please do!

Did you, or ... manage to calm Jackie, Mr Poirot?

I fear not,
Monsieur Doyle.

She's a little devil! I'd understand if she were to do something dramatic. But all this following me around ... it's indecent!

It is intelligent - a very subtle revenge.

Well, we've decided to outsmart her. Tomorrow at Shellal, we'll take the steamer, the KARNAM, to Wadi Halfa. By the time she realizes it, it'll be too late. She'll think we've gone back to Cairo!

I will be on the KARNAM
myself?

Oh? Er ... I don't want you to feel obliged ...

Do not worry, Monsieur Doyle. I always prepare my trips well in advance ...

By the way, who is that middle-aged man travelling with you?

Pennington? He's Linnet's American businessman. We ran across him by chance in Cairo.

He boarded the CARMANIC in New York just before Linnet's letter reached him informing him of our marriage, which he knew nothing about.

What a coincidence ...

... the CARMANIC?

THE PASSENGERS BOARD
THE KARNAK FOR A SEVEN
DAY CRUISE TO SHELAL ...

Cornelia! I hope you haven't forgotten anything this time! You're so absent minded!
Have you my medicines?

I've got them, Cousin
Marie!

Well, Cornelia? What's taking you so long? I'm waiting for you!

I'm coming, Cousin
Marie!

Hello!

Colonel Race? What a surprise!

Just a little holiday. But what about you?

Hercule Poirot, old chap!
On a job are you?

Not at all!

Shit! I'll explain later. Let's go and have a drink at the bar.

Finally, Linnet!
We've lost her!
Ah! The whole wide world just for us! But ... oh!

For God's sake!

Fancy
seeing you here, my darling
Simon!

THE ABU SIMBEL TEMPLE...

This one must be Amon and the other one Rameses.

It is very impressive, Monsieur Pennington!

CORNELIA!!!

Give me my umbrella, please!

What a delightful surprise for you to see young Linnet here ... and married!

Indeed. She wrote to me in New York but I was already on my way to Cairo, so our meeting was completely unexpected.

Madame Doyle told me you travelled over on the CARMANIC.

I did ...

Doesn't this place leave you speechless?

These Pharaoh fellows are quite sinister, frankly. There's something uncanny about them. Let's get out.

I agree, Simon. It's all rather oppressive ...

It's much more impressive at night.
Those Pharaohs look perfectly frightening.

You certainly have a taste for the dramatic,
Mademoiselle!

There may be no way back
for me now.

Mademoiselle, you have chosen a dangerous course. You have cut loose the bonds that moored you to safety.
Take care!

Too late, Mr Poirot. One must follow one's own star, wherever it leads. Good night!

Good night, Mademoiselle ...

What a lovely evening, Miss ... Cornelia. May I call you Cornelia?

Of course. It certainly is a peaceful evening, Dr Bessner.

I didn't know
you were a nurse, Cornelia. I have a clinic in Zurich. If at any time you're looking for work, I would be delighted to help you ...

CORNELIA!!!

Really, Dr
Bessner? Oh!
You've given me such hope!

Cornelia! Where the devil is my red stole? You misplace everything, my dear. It's intolerable!

But Cousin Marie, you had it with you in the drawing room!

She would be grateful indeed to get away from that dragon of a woman ...

ROSALIE!!!

Rosalie! Where is that wretched girl? My own flesh and blood abandons me! What a terrible fate!!

"When the old run around, the young bail them out." Poirot's proverb!

It's your turn, Simon!

Sorry, Pennington. I've not been concentrating ...

♪ He was her run and he did her wrong ... ♪

Your turn, Linnet!

Ah ... um ...

Welcome to the theatre of betrayed hearts, Miss Robson! This evening we're playing "He Was Her Fiancé - And She Stole Him!"

This is getting beyond a joke ...

How sweet! See how the wealthy Limet has stooped so low to embrace the pathetic Simon!

I'm going to bed!
Are you coming,
Simon?

Not right away. I won't give her the satisfaction ...

I'm pretty sleepy myself.
Good night, Doyle!

I'll come with you ...
Good night, Simon.

Miss Robson! Let's drink to "everlasting love". Have you ever been in love?

Stop making a spectacle of yourself, Jackie!

I'm off to bed ...

Do stay! I bet you love a sad story.
I have one that would bring tears to your eyes!

You're drunk,
Jackie.

Drunk? Drunk with revenge!

This is your last chance — leave her,
or I'll kill you!

Don't be ridiculous,
Jackie!

HOW DARE YOU! I'M RIDICULOUS NOW, AM I??

My God! What have I done? I wish I were dead - I'll kill myself!

Miss Robson, take Jackie to her cabin and don't leave her for a second till she calms down!

Let go of me!
I'm a miserable wretch!

Come with me, please ...

Get her out of here, Miss Robson. After that, can you go and look for the doctor?

I'll jump overboard. I WILL DROWN MYSELF !!!

She's quite capable of it! Please don't leave her alone!

Don't worry, Mr Doyle. I'm a nurse and I know what to do. I'll stay with her all right!

I'LL THROW MYSELF INTO THE WATER! I'M NOT FIT TO LIVE! OH SIMON - SIMON!

KEEP QUIET! WILL YOU PLEASE SHUT UP!

Hold her still. I'm going to give her some morphine.

Hurry up! That poor fellow is losing blood fast! I must go and call Dr Bessner ...

Please, gentlemen. Don't tell my wife about this before tomorrow morning. I don't want a scandal!

Don't worry. Everything's quiet. Nobody heard anything ...

This is serious, Allerton. His bone is fractured! Come on, my boy! Help me carry Mr Doyle. I'll take care of him in my cabin.

Poor Jackie! I'm the only guilty party in this! I treated her very badly!

It's as I thought. I must make you a splint till we can get you operated on in Alexandria.

AAA!

Allerton!
The gun!
We can't leave it lying around ...

I'll go and find it!

... Good!
Now I'll give you an injection so that you can sleep peacefully, my friend.

Dr Bessner, the pistol has disappeared!!!

WHAT??

Mrs Linnet,
Mrs Linnet!
Wake up!!!

PANIC-STRIKEN, LOUISE BOURGET, LINNET DOYLE'S
FRENCH CHAMBERMAID, RUNS UP ON DECK ...

HELP, HELP!

So, my instinct was quite correct,
Colonel Race. It has happened!

I've some slight official standing — so they've put this in my hands. Can I count on your help?

Of course,
my friend.

It was Dr Bessner
who told me about Jackie's
theatrics
last night!

Incredible! Two
dramas in one night! And Hercule
Poiret slept
through it all!

She was killed at point blank range. Given the wound and the powder burns, I'd say
it was a very small bullet,
a .22 calibre ...

Non d'un Non! What is this over here?

J'for Jacqueline de Bellefort!
The victim named her murderer.

Impossible! She died on the spot!

The murderer knew that Jackie hated Linnet, so he has used a silly trick to incriminate her.

Well, well! How strange ...

So let's get the facts straight — who knew about their quarrel?

Almost everyone. Miss Jackie did not hide her feelings! At what time did the crime take place, Doctor?

Between midnight and two o'clock in the morning, Monsieur Poirot ...

At least he is not hiding in the bathroom ...

I'll ask them to place the body in one of the ship's cold rooms ...

We can already clear three people of suspicion: Doyle who was injured, and Jackie and Miss Robson, who were together the whole night.

So it would seem ...

I now remember hearing a splash before falling asleep ... could it have been the murder weapon?

Perhaps, Colonel, but we're still not clear about the time of death ...

I didn't kill her. I swear it! Last night in my madness I could have killed Simon. But not her, not in cold blood!

I believe you. I do not think you are capable of it!

I'm sorry if I seem emotional ...

I'm terribly sorry to question you under these circumstances, Mr Doyle. But I understand your wife had many enemies.

Her father ruined a lot of people through his business dealings ... Janet was afraid that there was more than one person on board who might have suffered by him.

And would hate her because of it?

She thought she was surrounded by enemies. But she was probably exaggerating. Jackie's persecution had shattered her nerves.

Hmm ... One more thing did your wife have any expensive jewellery?

Her pearls were worth fifty thousand dollars. Good lord! You don't think it's about a necklace?

Sometimes organized gangs operate on this type of a cruise. By the way, how long has her chambermaid been working for her?

Barely two months. You don't think ...?

Should I call for her?

The pearls? When I helped Madame undress, she put them on her bedside table, as she did every evening.

Were they there this morning?

My God ... I didn't look! I saw Madame, ran out of the room, screamed and fainted!

So you noticed nothing? Fortunately, I keep my eyes peeled -- and there was no necklace on the table this morning!

I didn't take it!

ON THE TERRACE, ON DECK ...

Ladies and Gentlemen! lunch is served!

I have interrogated Rosalie Otterbourne. She fiercely denies having thrown anything whatsoever into the Nile.

Well, obviously, Colonel. How about we take advantage of the theft of the necklace to inspect the cabins?

Let's wait till all the passengers are gathered. I'll announce the search at the end of the meal and I'll ask them not to leave the room.

Fine. Let us have our lunch in the meantime!

Poor Mrs Doyle! You know, we knew her, Monsieur Poirot. Indirectly, of course. Joanna Southwood, Tim's cousin, was her friend.

Joanna Southwood? Wait ...

Oh yes! She was in the papers, back when Lady Portarlington's diamonds were stolen. Was he not, in fact, a suspect?

You see, Tim! I told you she was trouble! You shouldn't see her anymore.

Oh, don't be a bore! I was there at that famous party when they discovered that the diamonds around her neck were fakes!

Indeed. They had been substituted some weeks earlier.

Now for Madame Otterbourne. Could our inspired novelist have something to hide from us?

Ah ha! An artist's love of the bottle, if nothing else!

That explains the lady's maddening exhilaration ... Eh?!

Excuse me, gentlemen.

Miss van Schuyler was right, Colonel. I did throw something overboard. But not a revolver.

We've guessed, Miss. Liquor bottles?

Please, gentlemen, can I count on you to be discreet? My mother is very fragile!

Don't worry, Miss Rosalie. Now go back to the drawing room.

COLONEL RACE!

Must be tough for that young girl!

Look what we've discovered in this young lady's cabin. In her handbag!

GOOD GRIEF!!!

Heavens above! I really thought she was above suspicion!

Snail calibre ... mother of pearl grip ... the same little plaything! Bizarre ...

Let's go to Tim Allerton's cabin.
I find this young man intriguing,
Colonel.

Young Allerton, an art lover! Who would have thought so?

Ha! One wouldn't think to look at him, but the boy has money to spare ...

I should think he may have hidden talents ...

You think he's behind the theft?
A theft that went badly wrong?

There's no need to look any further,
gentlemen!

Under the circumstances,
I think I should return you these.

YOU?

My cousin, Miss van Schuyler, is not well. She takes things. Especially jewellery.
I found the necklace this morning in her stockings. Imagine my embarrassment ...

We are grateful to you for your help, Miss Robson.

Tell me frankly, Miss. Could this ... man ever drive your cousin to murder?

Never! She's mean, she's bossy — but she wouldn't hurt a fly!

Sadly, my friend, our work is not yet over.
These pearls are fake ...

No, I am sure of it! What is more, I am certain that the pearls I admired on Mrs Doyle's neck that first evening were real!

Perhaps she recognized her stole around the gun, got scared, and threw the whole lot into the water to be safe?

Or her bottle of nail polish ...

Her death was very quick.

What weapon was used?

A thin, sharp blade ...

A scalpel, for example?

I BEG YOUR PARDON?

I hope none of your surgical instruments is missing, Doctor.

Mein Gott! This is an outrageous accusation! Everything is here! You can check!

This insult to my profession I will not forget. Farewell gentlemen!

I am afraid I have annoyed an honourable member of the medical fraternity, Race.

Do you suspect him?

There are suspects all over the ship. But I am whittling them down!

Right now I am down to three. Two young people and one old swindler!

First: Cornelia Robson. Motive? Revenge. Her family was ruined by Linnet's father.

Impossible! Cornelia was looking after Jackie. She could not have gone and fetched the pistol before Tim returned to the drawing room for it.

Second: Tim Alerton. If he is the thief, he could have substituted the necklace before Miss van Schuyler went to Linnet's cabin.

Ahem ... And van Schuyler did give us the exact time of her crime. She said it was ten past one when she "woke up".

So perhaps it was Tim who took the weapon?

He could have taken advantage of the incident implicating Jackie. That's why he drew Jon the wall. But why on earth should he throw the pistol into the water?

I come to Number 3: Pennington.

We know the motive.

And he is a man who knows how to seize his moment. I suspect him of having pushed the falling rock ...

He gave himself away by claiming to be leaving the temple at the time.

A born liar. And I have yet another reason to think so ...

LET ME PASS! I know who did it!

Consider this a lesson learnt, young man!

I'll return the pearls, Mr Poirot. I swear to you! But, great God, I'm not the murderer!

I know.

BY JOVE, POIROT? So we're still in the dark?

No, not in the dark, Colonel ... in the light! Give me fifteen minutes and I shall reveal the truth!

A QUARTER OF AN HOUR LATER ...

Mesdames et Messieurs, I first believed Mrs Doyle's murder was committed on the spur of the moment, that the murderer killed Linnet knowing that suspicion would fall on Mademoiselle de Bellefort.

My Friends, that idea was false! The murder was planned in the smallest detail. Right down to the drugs slipped into my wine last night!

Calm down, Herr Doctor. I did not suspect you. If Louise Bourget needed to warn you, she could have done it in private.

But Simon Doyle, however, was under constant medical supervision. Colonel, remember you gave her the reply she wanted: "It's OK, I'll look after you!"

Absurd! A man with a broken leg could not have killed his wife and then her chambermaid!

He could warn his accomplice, Jackie!

Simon wants to see me. He's forgiven me! You can't imagine how relieved I am!

No!

Yes! Who gave Simon his alibi? Jackie, by firing the revolver. And Jackie's? Simon, by insisting that someone stay with her the whole night.

Now let us reconstruct the entire drama.

Poirot — did you mean to leave her this way out?
To escape the gallies?

I am afraid so. It seems I read her destiny the very first time I saw her in that restaurant in London. Most great love stories are tragedies ...

THE Agatha Christie ADVENTURES

The world's cleverest crime author is brought to book in this new series of graphic adaptations of her most famous crimes.

See who can survive DEATH ON THE NILE!

Egypt. Awesome land of the Pharaohs. The perfect place for a honeymoon – unless you are being stalked by your husband's ex-girlfriend! Hercule Poirot is determined not to let jealous young newlyweds ruin his holiday. Until the jealousies boil over into threats. And accidents. And murder!

Death on the Nile was based on Agatha Christie's own travels in Egypt with her archaeologist husband. Its glamorous setting made it the perfect foundation for a sumptuous film starring Peter Ustinov as Poirot. In this new graphic adaptation, Solidor vividly captures all the exotic mystery of the original 1937 novel.

ISBN 978-0-00-725058-5

For automatic book updates visit HarperCollins.co.uk/agathachristie and register for AuthorTracker

Explore more at www.agathachristie.com
The official online site

